

New testing system proposed for police

By Dave Gosnell
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — The city may end its testing system for police promotions under a plan being prepared by the Fire and Police Commission.

Recent controversy — over two Granite City policemen being promoted to sergeant rank on the basis of highest-in-the-nation test scores — prompted the commission to review the testing process, said Linda Irwin, a recently appointed commissioner.

Irwin said the three-member commission has almost completed ed a proposal that would "tailor" the tests with the use of an outside testing consultant. The consultant would also create a test for the selection of firefighters and policemen.

Irwin said the commission wants to utilize Harold Johnson, dean of instruction at Belleville Area College, to create and administer the written tests.

"He's a professional in his field. You have an expert from the outside with an unbiased view," Irwin said.

The commissioners would not be involved in the creation or

Louis Baer School to close in 1988

By Donna Kimbro
Staff writer

MADISON — Louis Baer Elementary School, built in 1922 and operated continuously since then, will be closed at the end of the 1987-88 school year, the Board of Education decided Thursday night.

Superintendent Dan Kostencki said the move is being made for economic reasons. It is expected that the district will realize yearly savings of $107,000 or more as a result of the action.

"There will be no loss of staff and the principal will be reassigned," the superintendent said. Enrollment at the school is 150 students at present.

Additions to the original building were built in 1955 and 1962 as enrollment expanded. The closing will result in sending fifth graders to the Madison Middle School and fourth grade pupils to Harris School. Harris has been serving kindergartners through third grade students and the Middle School has served the sixth, seventh and eighth grades. Not all arrangements for the move have been completed but tentative plans call for the fifth grade to be placed in an area away from older pupils.

At Harris School, first and second graders will utilize the lower floor, with third and fourth graders assigned to classrooms on the second floor.

Some remodeling will be needed but it will be done at minimum cost, the superintendent said.

A Board of Education committee will be set up to work with administrative teams. A second group will utilize teachers and input from the community.

A public meeting for residents will be scheduled after the first of the year to aid in completing plans for the move, Kostencki said.

Chamber holds annual dinner

GRANITE CITY — The Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce annual meeting held Thursday at Sunset Hills Country Club was a forum for appreciation.

Past chamber presidents, and presidents of the women's division, prominent area political figures and others who are helping to improve the business climate in the Quad City were honored.

During the meeting, retiring chamber President Tom Holloway, who is also president of the First Granite City National Bank, passed the gavel to his successor, chamber President Jim Eisenbeis, director of materials for Granite City Steel.

Also changing hands was the presidency of the women's division, which went from Mattie Pope, who is director of public relations for First Granite City National Bank, to Judy Stille, owner of Tops N' Bottoms, 1343 19th St.

Among political figures recognized was Sen. Sam Vadalabene, D-Edwardsville. Vadalabene was applauded for his work in the Senate to win approval for House Bill 143, which could lead to Madison County representation on the Belleville Area College Board of Trustees. Applause also went to Vadalabene for work that led to approval of the Southwest Illinois Development Authority.

Other political figures present included Granite City Mayor Von Dee Crane, Madison Mayor John Bellefleur, Pontoon Beach President Glen Wilson and Granite City Tax Assessor Darlene Laub.

Past chamber presidents recognized were Don Partney, David Schermer, Bill Patton, Drew Karandjef, Jack Dempsey and Al Triant.

R. C. BUSH, executive vice president of the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce (left), passes a plaque to Lacey Randolph, who was honored for work with the Ambassadors.

Plan Commission rejects rezoning of funeral home

By Dave Gosnell
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — The city's largest funeral home business was turned down in its bid to relocate on Maryville Road.

Randall and Linda Irwin, who own Randall A. Irwin Chapel for Funerals at 2801 Madison Ave., petitioned the city Plan Commission to rezone 1.5 acres on Maryville Road next to Domino's Pizza.

At the commission's Oct. 8 meeting, the commission voted 4-2 with one abstention to deny rezoning the property from "R-3" residential to "C-3" commercial, the city's second highest commercial class.

Linda Irwin said that she and her husband have plans to buy the property and build a $750,000, two-story brick funeral home. Irwin said the petition met city zoning laws and said she did not understand why the commission denied the rezoning.

"It doesn't make any sense," Irwin said. She said the commission probably voted down the petition because of its disagreement with the property's owner, Henry Ross. The Irwins have an agreement with Ross to buy the land pending the rezoning.

"I don't think we were really involved in the situation," Irwin said.

Dave McFarland, a commission member who voted against the rezoning, said the decision had little to do with the Irwins wanting to relocate in the area.

McFarland said some commission members want drainage and building plans from Ross, who owns other property in the area, before they open the area to more development.

In 1986, the City Council passed a measure that accepted a plan for the area. The plan subdivided a portion of land on Maryville Road that included a detention pond, to be built by Ross.

McFarland said Ross did not build the pond to the original specifications.

"We would like to have a comprehensive plan from him. We're not trying to disrupt plans. All we're asking for is some straight and above-board answers," McFarland said.

The members were also concerned about the possibility of more detention ponds being built in the area.

The area has no storm sewers and is one of the lowest points in the city, McFarland said. He said Ross has yet to supply a plan for the area and the commission is reluctant to rezone large vacant land tracts on Maryville Road until drainage issues are resolved and the commission has knowledge of what is to be built there.

He said plans submitted by the Irwins for the new funeral home show it would be an appropriate business for the area.

Local agency meets needs

By Bill Bagby
Staff writer

Fifth in a series. GRANITE CITY — Protestant Welfare Association Inc. is in the business of meeting needs.

Protestant Welfare provides assistance, including food, clothing, prescriptions, medical equipment and referral services, to persons in need, said secretary-director Dolores Gaines. All services are provided free, Gaines said.

Last month, 192 people were aided in the form of food or direct financial aid, and 78 orders for clothing were met, she said.

Some of the food distributed is purchased by the agency, and the rest is donated, Gaines said. All the clothing is donated either by individuals, churches or businesses, she said.

The agency also loans medical equipment, such as wheel chairs, crutches, walkers and canes, on a three-month basis, Gaines said.

Protestant Welfare is one of the agencies aided by the Tri-Cities Area United Way.

Congressional candidates slam central committee

By Dave Gosnell
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Madison County Democratic officials have chosen not to support a fellow candidate, Madison County Auditor Pete Fields, in Fields' bid for Congress.

The county's Democratic Central Committee voted to support St. Clair County Board Chairman Perry Costello for the 21st Congressional seat.

Costello's opponents were highly critical of the committee's actions.

A meeting of the committee took place Thursday evening in Granite City at Charlie's Restaurant. Fields, Costello and another candidate, Mike Mansfield, who is a top aide to Rep. Mel Price, D-Belleville, appeared before the committee. Price will retire after his term ends next year.

Chairman of the Central Committee, Mac Warfield, said the vote for Costello was "overwhelming."

Fields said he expected the committee to go for Costello and charged that many committee members do not reflect the opinions of Madison County Democratic voters.

He said the committee's endorsement of Costello goes against the wishes of Madison County voters, a majority of whom voted for Fields in the 1986 Democratic primary for Congress and voted Fields in as county auditor.

"That organization doesn't really reflect what Democratic voters in this county think. They (the committee members) are concerned about the power structure of that organization," Fields said.

As an example of how he did not think committee members were voting the wishes of their constituents, Fields said he won Edwardsville Township by more than 600 votes in the last congressional race, and yet the township's central committee members probably voted to endorse Costello.

"I don't know who voted for me and who didn't," but "I couldn't get a majority of those five" from Edwardsville, Fields said.

Warfield said the committee's policy is not to reveal how the Central Committee's 38 members voted.

Fields said he thinks he could win handily in Granite City, despite not having the endorsement of Granite City Township's Central Committee.

"I don't think I got a vote out of Granite City Township, either. I feel I'm going to win in Granite City," Fields said of the Democratic primary in March.

Fields also accused Warfield of "contaminating" his campaign with rumors that Fields owed the Central Committee contributions for the committee's endorsement of Fields in previous campaigns.

"It is a rumor they've been spreading. They should be more concerned about who's the best candidate and not who's going to contribute the most."

"This image that you buy endorsements is damaging to the Democratic Party," Fields said. He said that he owed the committee nothing.

"I'm free of wheeling and dealing," Fields said.

Fields said he did have some supporters on the committee.

Warfield denied that he has been working against Fields by spreading rumors.

"I did not try to harm his campaign. Somebody has to win and somebody has to lose. I think we ran it fair. I don't play politics like that," Warfield said. He also declined to discuss whether Fields owed the Central Committee money.

"Pete knows the situation. Somebody questioned him from the floor on the money situation. I'm not going to get in a battle with Pete Fields," Warfield said.

Warfield said each candidate spoke to the committee for 20 minutes.

He said he could not speak for committee members on why they voted for Costello but the committee's endorsement binds him; as chairman, to support Costello.

"The people voted for their candidates. I support what my committee endorses," Warfield said.

Vice chairman of the committee, Bob Stille, of Edwardsville Township and a Mansfield supporter, said he was unaware an endorsement vote would be taken at the meeting.

"I thought a screening was going to be done. Normally you do a screening and then go back to your precinct committeemen," Stille said.

Fields also said it was his understanding that the Thursday meeting was to be a screening.

"I went in there and talked about issues I thought were important," such as the national deficit and the budget, defense issues and education, Fields said. He said he was not asked by the committee about his stance on any issues.

Warfield said the committee voted Thursday to make an endorsement.

Mansfield was especially critical of the Central Committee's selection process. He said the committee asked him to prepare a position paper on a number of national issues.

"They didn't even read it before they voted," Mansfield said of his seven-page paper.

Mansfield said he had thought all the county's precinct committeemen would be given a chance to consider the candidates' positions.

"The Central Committee bypassed the committeemen. I thought it was a shame so few can dictate how 222 committeemen are supposed to act without any input. It makes you wonder why," Mansfield said.

There are 222 county Democratic precinct committeemen, each elected by primary voters. Less than 20 percent of those committeemen are Central Committee members. The county committee includes township party leaders.

Helen Hawkins, a Nameoki Township precinct committeeman and a Fields supporter, said she thought Fields deserved the county Democratic committee's support.

"He's proven he can run our county efficiently. I think we should have picked one of our own. They (the Central Committee) made a drastic mistake," Hawkins said.

Monday, Oct. 15, 1982
Contributions by residents, organizations and business firms in Madison and St. Clair counties totaled $424,576 for the purchase of land for the new state university east of the Quad City area, according to a Southern Illinois University Foundation report.

Garden Study discusses gourds

The October meeting of the Garden Study Club was held at the home of Bonnie Rutkowski in Edwardsville. A luncheon was served to eight members.

President Clara Winter called the meeting to order, and the collect was said in unison. Secretary Helen Meyer gave the roll call to which each member told if they grew gourds.

Invitations were received for a District V board meeting that was to be held at Walton's Restaurant, Edwardsville, and to the District V Presidents' Council Day meeting to be hosted by Edwardsville Garden Club at Walton's Restaurant on Oct. 22. Registration is at 9:30 a.m. and meeting at 10 a.m.

On Sept. 26, at the District V Flower Show in Collinsville, Marie Dads received two first-place ribbons for her rose exhibits, and Winter received two first-place ribbons for her Hungarian wax peppers and blue salvia, one second-place ribbon for her variegated sedum, and one third-place for her danvers carrots.

Jean Holder gave the program "Nature's Ornaments." Ornamental gourds consist of Turkeys Turban, Turk's Cap, Emperor's Mitre and others, she said. Also, the Luffa is a member of the gourd family, with its fibrous interiors that are useful as sponges.

The large plain green gourds (Lagenaria vulgaris) are not often seen at exhibits unless they have been dried and decorated by burning with an electric needle, carving or enameling. Gardeners prefer to raise this species because of its decorative possibilities. Gourds have been listed in American seed catalogs for more than 60 years, the speaker said.

Exhibits of gourds were brought by Winter and Christine Hornberger. Holder brought a basket arrangement of various gourds.

Other members present were Marie Dads, Catherine Kostoff and Marie Oaken.

Knights will help retarded

Illinois Knights of Columbus have set their sights on raising $1 million more for the mentally retarded than they did a year ago. The 18th annual K of C drive to aid mentally retarded will be staged the weekend of Oct. 23-24 throughout the state.

Last year, the Catholic fraternal society raised in excess of $1.3 million for the mentally handicapped.

Since this fund program was launched in 1970, the Illinois Knights of Columbus have raised more than $13.6 million.

K of C charitable activities in this state also include a Newman Apostolate Program, established on secular campuses in Illinois and a Disaster Fund project made available to churches of all denominations, hospitals and schools damaged by high winds, flood or fire.

The 1987 MR drive again will be publicized by a series of promotions featuring television star Bob Newhart.

The theme for the annual drive is: "Through Friendship and Love, We Bloom and Grow."

All the funds collected, less the 13 percent used for candy distributed during the drive and promotional expenses, are either returned to community MR organizations and institutions or placed in a special fund.

Workshop shelters, institutions and organizations working with the mentally retarded are the recipients of the fund. Ten percent is set aside to promote statewide MR projects.

In past years, the special fund was used to underwrite the cost of a "leadmobile" that traveled around the state testing young children for lead ingestion, for the Illinois Special Olympics Inc. summer and winter games, and for other such projects.

In the past year, K of C Charities Inc. has financed two residential homes for the mentally handicapped, one in Oak Park and the second in Bloomington, with interest-free loans to the operators. Long-range plans call for financing residential homes in major cities throughout the state.

Volunteers from many of the community organizations supporting the mentally handicapped, plus students and members of the K of C and their families, will be working intersections, highways and shopping centers Oct. 23-24, wearing numbered yellow jackets saying "Knights of Columbus Help Mentally Retarded Children."

Fitness classes beginning

"Just because the days are getting shorter, doesn't mean you have to curtail your physical activities," Jim Chiappa, St. Elizabeth Medical Centers Wellness coordinator, said. "Instead, bring them inside to the Going Strong Wellness Center's winter series of fitness classes."

Choose from a variety of programs, such as Walking for Fun and Fitness, Fitness Over Fifty, Beginning Aerobics, Low-Impact Aerobics, or Stretching for Relaxation I or II. Classes will run for eight weeks, and have been conveniently scheduled.

The Wellness Center also has a variety of classes for expectant mothers and their families, such as Early Prenatal Classes, Lamaze Classes, Lamaze Refresher Course, Caesarean-Section Class, Expectant Sibling Class, Breastfeeding Class, or Creative Parenting Class.

"One of the newest classes being offered by the Obstetrics Department is the Stork Exercise Club, whose goal is to help maintain an energetic and healthy pregnancy for women in all stages of pregnancy, including postpartum," said Chiappa. "However, a physician's release is required."

Other programs and support groups available through the Wellness Center include Wellness Assessment, Individual Diet Counseling, Cybex Isokinetic Evaluation, Outpatient Cardiac CPR, TPI Techniques, Back Care Program, The Hearing Center, The Coronary Club, Better Breathers Club, Pulmonary Support Group, Postnatal Care and Edgewood/Edwardsville Chemical Dependency Unit.

For more information or to register for classes, call 798-3WEL.

Trustees OK bid for roof repairs

NAMEOKI — A bid of $10,800 was accepted Tuesday by the Town Board for repairs to the roof on the township highway department's garage.

Supervisor Harry Briggs Sr. said the bid was submitted by Wallace Construction of Granite City.

Trustees authorized Township Clerk-Lee Ridgeway in August to seek bids for repairs to the roof. The roof leaks in several places, officials said.

Money was put in the road district and town fund budgets to install a gable on the roof to prevent future problems.

Q. Is it true that I can buy U.S. Savings Bonds on a tax free basis if I specifically buy them for my child's college education?

A. You are correct. However, there is a proper procedure which must be followed in order to secure a tax-free return which, incidentally, applies to federal state and local taxes. You must buy the bonds in your child's name, with you, the parent, as beneficiary. Do not name yourself as co-owner, however. At the end of the first year of ownership, file a federal tax return in your child's name, and inform the Internal Revenue Service that you child will report annually on the interest received. So long as the total investment income reported by your child does not exceed $1,000 annually, the accrued interest on the bonds held is tax free. Again, be sure to name yourself as beneficiary, not as co-owner. At the current rate, and if bonds are bought early enough in the child's life, the child, for example, the tax-free earnings could well go a long way toward a college education.

University to increase tuition

An 18 percent tuition hike was "reluctantly" approved by the SIUC board of trustees Oct. 8 at SIUC.

The vote was 5-0. The SIUC and SIUC student representatives voted against the increase; however, their votes are advisory only.

The increase will take effect at the beginning of the winter quarter at SIUC, and the spring quarter at SIUC.

At SIUC, the increase for a full-time undergraduate student will be $60.60 per quarter. Graduate students will pay an increase of $68.35 per quarter, and dental students will pay an additional $125.60.

At SIUC, undergraduate and graduate tuition will rise $103.20 per semester, law students will pay $121.80 more and medical students will pay an additional $200.

The tuition increase is being planned because Gov. James Thompson reduced the SIUC operating budget by $6.2 million, to $194,770,206 from $200,948,300. According to SIUC Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit, the request for an increase was made "with the greatest reluctance" and only as a last resort.

"We do understand the impact of the tuition increase on our students, and that bothers us," he said.

He noted that public universities around the state are planning to ask for tuition increases, and said many will be greater than SIUC's.

SIUC Board Chairman Harris Rowe blamed state legislators for their "inability to see the shortfall and need in education."

He said a tax increase is needed. Both faculty and students from Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville are expected to join a rally and lobbying day in Springfield Oct. 21 to protest budget cuts and tuition increases.

SIUC Student Government President Terry Abernathy said that three ads will be run in the student newspaper promoting the "Day of Action." It is sponsored by a coalition of the Illinois Student Government, the Illinois Federation of Teachers and the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

Abernathy said she hoped several carloads of students would go to the Statehouse rally and lobby area legislators to provide more money and permit rescinding of the tuition hikes.

"Students who have heard about the increase are upset. But most students don't seem to know about it yet for some reason. There were very few students at the board meeting," Abernathy said.

"A lot of kids have to work to stay in school and are just getting by now," she added.

Although a one-day "strike" and rallies are slated at SIUC at Carbondale, Abernathy said none were planned at this time at SIUC.

A POSSIBLE DEAL? Bob Marinko, owner of R.J. Jewelry, scans his computer screen.

Computers, jewelry make good combination

GRANITE CITY — Computers and jewelry sound like a strange combination, but modern technology has brought the two together.

R.J. Jewelry, 3801 Nameoki Road, is part of a nationwide telecommunications network for trading in diamonds, rubies, emeralds and other jewelry-related merchandise.

Jewelry store owner Bob Marinko said the system, known as the Polygon trading network, enables him to be linked with 500 jewelers throughout the U.S. It provides a way for dealers to communicate their needs, whether to buy or sell, nationally to other retailers or wholesalers.

Through the computer, a certain quality and size of gem can be located nationwide within minutes by scanning the screen. Sales or purchases can be made over the computer, Marinko said, and the merchandise can be delivered within 24 hours by Federal Express.

Besides speed, another advantage of the system is that customers can find or sell items at the best possible price.

Marinko has been a part of the network for about a year, he said. His jewelry store was the first one in Illinois to participate in it, Marinko said.

Several of his customers have been assisted through the network.

"It's been a real good tool for us," he said. "We enjoy it like crazy."

Besides jewelry, some of the participating jewelers in the network use the system to buy and sell other articles such as cars, cameras and yachts.

"Obviously, jewelers have interests in other things," he said.

The open house will be held at 6:30 p.m. Oct. 19 and 20, and 10 a.m. Oct. 21 at the Glenview Chapel Assembly of God Church, 3000 Maryville Road.

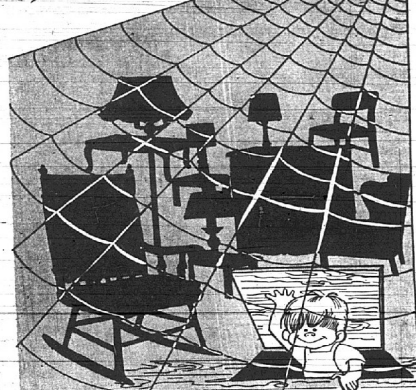

Residents are invited to the open house, being held simultaneously at other Weight Watchers locations. Visitors attending will take part in a meeting, conducted by a trained leader who will lead a discussion pertaining Participants will see the type of group support the program offers and have an opportunity to talk with Weight Watchers representatives who themselves have lost weight in the program.

"We are excited about our open house activities," said Sandie Foler, president of Weight Watchers of Greater Missouri and Southern Illinois. "Some people still think bells go off when you weigh in at a meeting. At the open house, they'll find that's not true."

Red ink blamed on attendance projections

By Roger McGrath
Journal affiliate

The S.S. Admiral was adrift in red ink by late July with operating expenses exceeding the entertainment center's revenues by $855,000, according to city documents.

Loan payments increased the loss to $1,214,000.

An Admiral spokesman blamed lower-than-anticipated attendance for the red ink.

Critics, including an influential investor in the Admiral, blamed the boat's operator, Six Flags Corp., for the poor performance — and urged that a new operator be found for the foundering entertainment complex.

In late August, Mayor Vincent C. Schoemehl Jr. called in riverboat entrepreneur John Connelly. Once details are finalized, Connelly will bring his riverfront expertise and $1.9 million in cash to the Admiral.

He's confident he can run the Admiral profitably.

So, too, were Six Flags executives.

The basic problem was volume," said Robert J. Kochan, director of marketing and entertainment. "The Admiral is an expensive thing to run. That's why you have to have a lot of people (board the boat)."

Kochan had previously said the Admiral needed 1 million visitors to cover the boat's expenses, including debt service.

Actual attendance wasn't close to that. Kochan now expects 800,000 will board the entertainment complex by year's end. At the close of the tourist season, Labor Day, just 350,000 had boarded.

That shortfall was reflected in the Admiral's financial performance.

From Jan. 1 to July 26, revenues from boarding passes and the sale of food, drink and merchandise totaled $4,070,000.

Operating expenses, however, totaled $4,925,000, leaving an operating loss of $855,000. Debt payments brought the seven-month loss to $1,214,000.

As of July 26, the Admiral's balance sheet also was awash in red ink, with assets of $23,630,000 vs. liabilities of $28,851,000.

The figures are contained in a document filed with the city's Office of Business Development (OBD). Monthly profit-and-loss statements must be filed with OBD as part of the loan agreement between the S.S. Admiral and several city agencies which loaned the riverfront project $2.6 million.

The Journal asked that the statements be made available.

City officials opened the files late last week.

"A lot of things we did were aimed at reducing expenses," Kochan says.

"Hours of operation were slashed — when it became apparent that Monday and Tuesday attendance was slight, the boat was closed those days — and the management staff was streamlined."

"The operating expenses were in line with the original projections," he said. "You still have to use the same number of people to run things, for the shows (whether many or a few visitors board the Admiral)."

"We got a lot of people but we could have had more. (Traffic) was, frankly, at times discouraging."

"You've got to believe (a picket line protesting the Admiral's union relations) turned some people away," as did media reports of trash fires aboard the boat, he added.

But critics maintain the primary reason the Admiral failed to attract more visitors was the $4.95 boarding fee.

"You see a whole lot of folks during June-July-August. Middle America families on budget-vacation," said Dick Burke, executive vice president of Eagle Marine Industries Inc., operator of the M.V. City of St. Louis and the Lt. Robert E. Lee.

For those vacationers, $4.95 was too steep, he said.

"The biggest complaint we hear is the admission price," reported John Auhle, owner of the Goldenrod Showboat. "They have to spend money to have the right to spend money."

But Kochan said "you don't pay off a $35 million project by letting everybody on free."

Original estimates indicated the Admiral could be converted into a permanently moored entertainment complex for $26 million. Final bill: $36.9 million, with loans supplying $23.4 million.

Her husband, Walter H. Rivoir, died in 1973.

Survivors include one daughter, Norma Jean Rivoir, Granite City; two sisters, Mary Bunn and Mrs. Herschel (Dorothy) Cassy, both of Granite City; and nieces and nephews.

Visitation was set for 6 to 9 p.m. Saturday and noon to 9 p.m. Sunday at Werner Chapel for Funerals, 3830 Lake Drive, Pontoon Beach. The Rev. David Ratzel will officiate at 10 a.m. services Monday at Concordia Lutheran Church, 2801 Grand Ave., with burial at Sunset Hill Cemetery, Edwardsville.

Steele

Maurice E. Steele, 76, of 1609 Lindell Blvd., died at St. Elizabeth Medical Center at 10:23 a.m. Friday, Oct. 16, 1987, after suffering an apparent heart attack the same day at home.

Mr. Steele retired in 1972 as assistant treasurer and vice president at the Federal Land Bank in St. Louis, where he started as an accountant 35 years earlier.

Born Jan. 17, 1911, in Davenport,

Iowa, Mr. Steele resided most of his life in Granite City. He and his wife, the former Helen Morgan, were married 49 years ago in Granite City. Mrs. Steele survives.

Mr. Steele was a member and elder of the First Presbyterian Church. He served in the U. S. Army in World War II.

Beside his wife, also surviving is a son, David Steele of Santa Monica, Calif. Memorial services will take place at 1:30 p.m. Monday at Irwin Chapel for Funerals, 2801 Madison Ave., with the Rev. Dr. Elizabeth Steele officiating. In lieu of flowers, the family requests memorials to First Presbyterian Church.

Change in testing for police proposed administration of the written tests but would administer an oral test for promotions, Irwin said. She said oral and written exams would be used to determine the best candidates, how their scores are compiled," Irwin said.

"The commission is still working out how much on-the-job experience should count in a promotion, Irwin said.

A new set of rules and regulations governing fire and police department jobs will also be created, Irwin said.

In the past, the commission used a standard test for police promotions that was used nationwide.

In 1985, two Granite City police officers scored the highest in the country on the test. The two officers later received promotions based partially on the written test results.

The Division of Criminal Investigation of the Illinois State Police recently investigated in the hope of learning how those officers were able to receive the high scores.

A Madison County grand jury has heard testimony from former commissioners Dan Partney and Bob Barton, commissioner Joe Williams and the two officers.

The test forms were sent to Partney's home; it is a common practice to send them to the home of the commission chairman, the position he held.

Irwin said that practice will be eliminated under the new guidelines.

Irwin said the commission is not now judging the testing of the two officers. But she said commissioners want to change the testing process to eliminate even an appearance of impropriety.

"We want to avoid any type of situation that might occur. You can't just give jobs to your friends and political allies," Irwin said. "It's going to be fair. There will be no politics."

The commission will bring the proposal before the City Council, probably at the council's Oct. 20 meeting, for its consideration, Irwin said.

Johnson has agreed to be paid $800 annually for his services, Irwin said.

A captain's position was opened after the resignation of Police Chief Bill Harris and subsequent promotions. Irwin said officers won't be tested for the promotion unless the new guidelines are accepted by the council.

Wins Tamburitzan scholarship

Deborah Harris, winner of the Tamburitzan Scholarship at Granite City Campus of Belleville Area College, had no interest in college when she finished high school 17 years ago. But all that's changed. The second-year student at the Granite City Campus now plans to become a teacher. The Tamburitzan Scholarship, a $500 award, is funded by proceeds from the annual dance concert presented by the Tamburitzans of Duquesne University, Pittsburgh. Harris said returning to school was not always easy. "I went in scared to death," she said. "I've been pretty fortunate and I've had some excellent instructors." Her husband, Donald, has been a source of encouragement to attend college, she said.

She hopes to become a reading teacher in the elementary schools, adding that she has been influenced by those already in that field.

The Tamburitzans will perform in concert in Granite City Friday, Nov. 27.

Visitors welcome at Boone's home

By Pamela Selbert
Journal affiliate

Nestled into the rolling hills of Missouri, a short drive west of St. Louis into St. Charles County, is the rustically elegant four-story stone house Daniel Boone once called home.

Although the trapper-frontiersman-judge-surveyor didn't move there until late in his life — "work on the home began when he was 69 — Boone lived in the beautiful surroundings longer than any of his previous homes.

Because of poor surveying techniques and record-keeping, Boone lost some land in Kentucky in the late 1700s, said Lewis Andrae, present owner of Boone's house and land in Defiance, Mo.

Back in those days, titles weren't recorded, Andrae said. "So when new settlers came into an area, and the land was surveyed, old settlers couldn't prove property lines and ownership."

At that time Missouri still was owned by Spain and the Spanish government was eager for settlers.

In 1799, Daniel Boone's brother (Square), his wife (Rebecca), his son (Nathan) and Nathan's wife and 10 children came down the Ohio River "on a boat hewn from logs," said Andrae. Boone traveled over land and the two parties met in St. Louis.

They were given 1,000 acres — an acre is three-quarters of an acre — by the Spanish government for the promise of 10,000 more if they could persuade 100 other families to settle the area. The families came and the additional acreage was given the Boones, but once again Boone ended up with a real estate problem. The Louisiana Territory had been ceded by Spain to France and then sold to the United States in 1803 — after work was started on Boone's house in Defiance.

Boone sent Nathan to New Orleans — where all land titles in the territory had to be registered — to clear the title. Although he went as his father's agent, he was not permitted to sign his father's name and, as a result, Nathan's name appeared on the title as owner of his father's property. The acreage of the property was, however, greatly reduced through unfortunate technicalities when the land became part of the United States.

"Boone lost all but 1,000 acres on the river," Andrae said. Today, the estate has been decreased to only 112 acres.

Despite his age, Boone's life here was far from idle. "Meriwether" Lewis and (William) Clark came to confer with (Boone) before setting out to explore the Louisiana Purchase (territory)," Andrae said.

Boone also served as a justice of the peace here, holding court on his property beneath a magnificent "judgment tree." The tree, believed to be 350 years old, still stands but died from Dutch elm disease in 1973.

"Boone also probably did some surveying here, and we know that he did surgery for charity, removing bullets and patching up people," Andrae said.

Although Boone traveled in the Northwest and visited the Great Salt Lake, last crossing the Rockies when he was more than 80, he found the time to oversee the building of his home, a project which he completed in 1810 after seven years of construction.

Boone died in Defiance on Sept. 26, 1820, at the age of 86. Today, the blue limestone manse is one of several buildings on the property. Others include the Frieden's Peace Church (a beautiful little frame building with large dove atop the tall, graceful steeple), which was moved here two years ago by the Andraes. An early 19th century home nearby has also been brought to the property. A chicken house built by Francis Curlee, owner of Curlee Clothing and the owner of the Boone property prior to Andrae, has been enclosed and converted into a small restaurant. Boone's barn, replete with walnut beams, has been restored, as has his carriage house, which now contains a gift shop.

"The stone house itself was built to withstand an occasional attack by Indians," said Alan Andrae, Rolla's daughter-in-law. "Trouble probably came from the Fox Indians, who came here from Iowa looking for hunting land," she said.

Dressing in period homespun attire, Alan conducts tours of the home, which has 20-inch thick walls and six gun ports dotting the front of the house.

The first floor has an east room or drawing room with a walnut beam ceiling and a mantel carved by Boone. Across the entryway is a small bedroom, dining room "which were used by Boone and Rebecca, and could be closed off to give them some privacy," Alan said.

Below, in what might be considered the basement, are the "main" dining room, again with walnut ceiling, and a large kitchen with an enormous fireplace. All rooms are furnished.

Boone's house is beautifully maintained, as is the property, which boasts green lawns, towering oaks, drooping willows, split rail fences and low stone walls. Plan to spend several hours here roaming the house and grounds.

Daniel Boone's home is open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. seven days a week through March 15 and Dec. 15. Tours are available. To get there, take Interstate 40 west to Missouri 94, turn south at the Defiance exit and then right on Highway F.

KMOX widens ratings lead in latest Arbitron radio poll

By Scott Simon
Staff affiliate

If KMOX-AM (1120) was a racehorse, you could bet all of your money and not have to worry about losing.

The station once again was the big winner in the summer audience radio measurement race based on the figures compiled by Arbitron from June 28 through Sept. 16.

Measuring an audience of people 12 years of age and older listening to the radio between 6 a.m. and midnight Monday through Sunday, KMOX averaged 26.5 percent of the radio listening audience for any 15-minute period.

That figure beat the station's spring audience number which was a very respectable 23.0.

How well did Cardinal baseball do at night on KMOX? The Arbitron survey revealed the station's average listening audience 7 p.m.-midnight was a whopping 41.1, up considerably from the 28.6 figure during the spring.

As reported here last week, CBS, the company that owns KMOX and sister station KHTR-FM (103.3), decided in a cost-cutting move not to purchase the summer audience measurement figure from Arbitron.

The decision is no big deal to KMOX — but it could be a big deal for sister station KHTR, which is closely bunched with other stations in the ratings war.

Here is the list of St. Louis' top 20 stations with the figures listed as a percentage.

1. KMOX, 25.5; 2. KSHE-FM (94.7), 10.6; 3. KZZZ-FM (102.5), 7.2; 4. KHTR-FM (103.3), 5.9; 5.

KMLM-FM (107.7), 5.5; 6. KYK-Y-FM (96.1) and WIL-FM (92.3), 4.5; 8. KSD-FM (93.7) and KWK-FM (106.5), 3.3; 10. KUSA-AM (550), 2.3; 11. WBSL-AM (1490) and WKXX-FM (104.1), 2.0; 13. KTH-FM (97.1), 1.9; 14. KRJY-FM (96.3), WTHH-AM (590), WMRV-FM (101.1), and KATZ-FM (100.3), 1.8; 18. KGLD-AM (1380), 1.3; 19. KATZ-AM (1000), 1.2; 20. WEW-AM (770) 1.0.

Comparing the summer figures to the spring numbers, the gainers were KMOX, up 2.5; KYKY, up 1.2; and WIL-FM, up 1.1.

Stations losing ground were KMMJ, down 1.5; KSD, down 8; KWK and WMRV, down 7; and WIL-AM, down 6.

BAD NEWS: KSDK-TV (Channel 5) really dropped the ball during its noon newscast Oct. 7 when it led with a story on Vin Scully's play-by-play of the St. Louis Cardinals-San Francisco Giants baseball playoff game the previous night on NBC-TV.

Scully repeatedly referred to a St. Louis fan interfering with a batted ball by a Giant player as the key to a Cardinal victory, even when plays showed the fan was minding his own business.

Fans called the KSDK switchboard immediately with complaints which continued the next morning.

So how did Channel 5 solve the problem? By devoting the first five minutes of the newscast about the complaints. Shown was a videotape replay of the incident, a reaction from Cardinals television broadcaster Jay Randolph, an interview with the fan in question and a comment that Missouri Gov. John Ashcroft called the station to see how he could get in touch with Scully.

On a day when Supreme Court appointee Judge Robert Bork was being rebuked by members of the U.S. Senate, the prime interest rate was on the rise and a Soviet scientist was visiting Monsanto Co., Channel 5 thought a sportscaster's comment were more important.

What a set of priorities we have in St. Louis.

Tom Brimberry seeks reduction of sentence

Thomas R. Brimberry, Granite City, serving 20 years for masterminding a $16 million stock fraud against St. Louis brokerage firm, is attempting to get his sentence reduced.

His attorney, Lawrence Fleming, on Oct. 9 asked U.S. District Judge William L. Beatty in Alton to change the four five-year consecutive prison terms to at least two 10-year concurrent terms.

Beatty took the plea under advisement.

Fleming said Brimberry, who was sentenced by Beatty in June 1983, must serve 60 months before he is eligible for parole.

Fleming said Brimberry, of Granite City, has diabetes, a tumor in his chest, and must undergo surgery in the near future.

"He may not have too much time left. It would be good if he could spend it with his family," Fleming said. "He (Brimberry) was extremely cooperative with government investigators and deserves recognition for that."

Brimberry's friend Wayne Inger, brother Dallas Brimberry and daughter Crissy Brimberry testified in favor of the early release.

The three said they have visited Brimberry in the federal prison in Marion and that Brimberry seems depressed.

"He's just not himself. He acts like he doesn't hear us. We have to repeat our conversation to him. He cries when we leave," said his 17-year-old daughter.

Brimberry's wife, Janice, divorced him after he was sentenced.

Clifford Proud, assistant U.S. attorney, told Beatty that Brimberry's parole eligibility is at the minimum, which is one-third of the total sentence.

Proud asked that the consecutive sentences remain and that the terms not be changed to concurrent.

Judge dismisses 2 of inmate's lawsuits

A judge has dismissed two of several civil rights lawsuits filed by Jimmie Rose, an inmate of the Madison County Jail in Edwardsville.

Associate Judge Edward C. Ferguson dismissed an action against Madison County Sheriff Bob Churchich and Sgt. Don Wein of the sheriff's department and another against the Granite City Police Department.

Ferguson said the sheriff's department suit failed to state a cause of action, but he gave Rose leave to amend the complaint.

The judge ordered the Granite City Police Department to provide a list of any property seized from Rose when he was arrested to see if any of it should be returned.

Rose, 43, of Easton, Pa., is awaiting trial on charges of sexually attacking a woman companion in Granite City. He is sought by Pennsylvania authorities on a variety of charges.

Rippy was released on $300 cash bail and a $7,000 recognizance bond.

Weapons, jewelry gone

In a break-in at the home of Jessie Warren, 2705 Marshall Ave., reported Oct. 9, the burglars stole a Czechoslovakian .25 caliber automatic loading rifle, a 32 caliber Charter Arms revolver with a two-inch barrel valued at $112 and an older model .38 caliber blue steel automatic loading pistol.

Also among the items missing were $30 in coins, a woman's watch with a cameo band worth $20, a gold charm necklace with 15 to 20 charms valued at $500, a pair of diamond earrings worth $100 and a rechargeable lantern valued at $40.

Passenger injured in crash on Washington

An accident at Washington Avenue and 20th Street at 11 p.m. Oct. 9 resulted in injuries to Christina Cantlon, 16, of 2811 Nameoki Drive, a passenger in a car operated by Todd M. McClew, 16, of 2148 Foreman Court. She declined immediate medical attention, reports said.

McClew's auto and a van operated by Lisa M. Gray, 24, of 2881 Iowa St., collided at the intersection. After the collision, McClew's car spun around, crossed a curb on 28th Street and hit a fire hydrant before coming to a stop. He was charged with failing to yield at a stop sign.

Motorcyclist injured in Madison Avenue crash

Glen J. Durning, 19, of 2106 E. 24th St., was injured Oct. 9 when his southbound motorcycle skidded against the rear of an auto operated by Becky A. Schmiege, 23, of 2021 Washington Ave., who was preparing to turn left onto 30th Street from Madison Avenue.

Durning's cycle then slid into the northbound lanes and was struck by the auto of Frank J. Scaturro, 18, of 1643 Edison Ave. A vehicle driven by Norma J. Cullum, 39, of 605 Fillmore Ave., Venice, also heading north on Madison Avenue, was struck by flying debris.

Driver charged after parking lot accident

Keith E. Sugg, 24, of 2827 Pershing Blvd., was charged Oct. 9 with failure to give information upon striking an unattended vehicle and driving while his license was suspended.

The charges resulted from an Oct. 3 accident in a parking lot at 3120 Nameoki Road involving a parked auto belonging to Ken Crawford of Granite City.

The car allegedly operated by Sugg left the scene. Sugg was also charged on a Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville warrant alleging failure to appear on a traffic charge. He was released after posting $169 bail.

Two charges result from Fehling mishap

Tony M. Zarlingo, 28, of 2850 Idaho Ave., sustained an injury Oct. 10 while seated in his auto on Fehling Road waiting for a traffic light. His car was struck by a vehicle operated by Jeffrey S. Fedora, 18, of 2807 Indiana Ave.

Police said Fedora's car was southbound on Nameoki Road when the driver tried to turn right onto Fehling Road but skidded through the intersection and hit Zarlingo's passenger side.

Fedora's car allegedly spun around and continued heading west on Fehling until stopped by Illinois State Police Trooper Tyrone Jordan, who had seen the car spin.

Fedora was charged with failure to give aid or information and driving too fast for conditions.

An argument was occurring between two 14-year-old youths when Clevenger, a relative of one boy involved, began interfering and allegedly started to fight the second boy, reports said.

Two teachers broke up the fight by trying to pull the older youth away and separating the pair, reports said.

Clevenger was taken to the school office and police were called. He was released after posting $52 cash bail.

Spikers down Kahoks in two games

By Carl Jacobs
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Everyone on the Granite City volleyball team was wary of the Collinsville Kahoks before the match Thursday.

Though Collinsville was only at the break-even mark of 9-9, the rivalry between the two schools was enough to keep Granite City (18-5) from becoming overconfident.

Collinsville hung close to the Warriors or first half of the first match before Granite blew by the Kahoks. Tied at 6-6, the Lady Warriors scored nine straight to win the first game, 15-6, and then cruised to a 15-2 win in the second game.

"We were standing around in the beginning," said head coach Don Deterding. "Then we started anticipating and moving around and things started working out for us."

Granite City surged to a 3-0 lead in the first game before Collinsville came back. Pam Judge's spike gave the Kahoks a 5-3 lead. Beth Eary's serve and a Tammy LeVault spike tied the game 5-5. After the teams traded points, a Wendy Knollman spike and block gave Granite City a two-point lead and they were never headed.

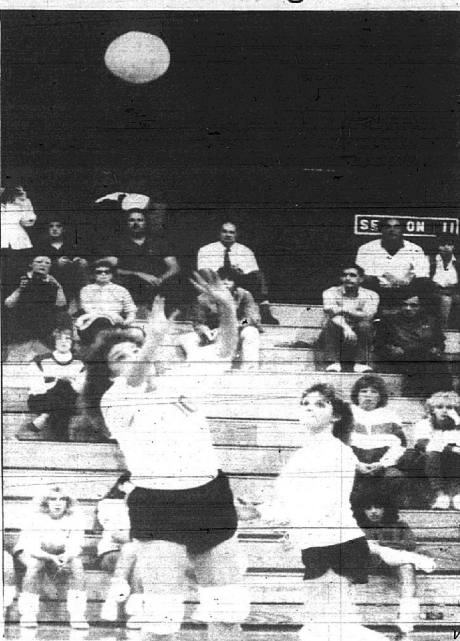

"Everything we do has been a little off lately," said Collinsville coach Susan Jeffries. "When that is happening and you get down by three or four points, it's hard to comeback."

"We stopped their good outside hitters of Tammy LeVault and Wendy Knollman at the start of the game but we quit doing that and they took advantage."

Lisa Kult's serve deflected off Debbie Blumner to give the Lady Warriors a 9-6 lead. A Knollman block and a Kult service ace stretched the Granite margin to 12-6. Two Kahoks hit outs and a LeVault block ended the first match.

The second match was no contest. Granite City again jumped to a 3-0 lead. Collinsville scored a point on a Warriors hit. Granite City banged out 11 points before the Kahoks scored again.

"During the scoring binge, Eary's chipped in two spikes as did Knollman. LeVault hit two serves that Collinsville couldn't return and the Kahoks hit five balls out of bounds. "I was expecting Collinsville to be tougher," Deterding said. "But they don't have much momentum right now and you need that to win games."

Jeffries agreed. "Volleyball is a game of momentum and when you don't have it on your side it can be tough," she said. "This is a bad time of year to be going bad because of regionals."

Collinsville got the ball back and scored a point to make the score on a Warrior hit out 14-2, but Granite City ended the match on the next serve.

Gushleff's 7 goals lift Madison

By Carl Jacobs

MADISON — Jerry Gushleff did everything on offense short of firing heat-seeking missiles as the Trojans blasted Lebanon 9-2 in a soccer conference battle Thursday.

Madison, which locked up the Mid-South Division with a win over Waterloo on Wednesday, improved their conference slate to 6-0-2 and the overall mark to 6-3-2 with the win over the Greyhounds.

Gushleff scored seven of Madison's eight goals, with each tally more spectacular than the next. On the one goal he didn't score, he faked the defense with two quick body fakes and made an on-target crossing pass to get an assist on Steve Mainridge's goal.

Gushleff's phenomenal final tally started with a drive that led him weaving among five mesmerized Lebanon defenders to get to a free spot where he nailed a line shot into the lower-left corner of the net.

Madison head coach Gene Briggs and Lebanon mentor Ted Hodgson agreed Gushleff was the ball quickly was the key to the game.

"All plays start with the fullbacks and them moving the ball up quickly to the halfbacks," Briggs said. "We get our offense started by moving the ball up quickly and trying to catch a team's defense off guard. "In the game was the Trojans' ability to get the ball upfield."

"We played Madison last week and they had a tough time beating us because we had the ball in their end a lot," Hodgson said. "But today they got the ball up quickly. Gushleff is a great player, no doubt about it, but if the other players don't get him the ball fast, he wouldn't have scored that many goals."

Gushleff opened the scoring. Two long passes moved Madison up the field with just two Lebanon defenders back. A pass to Gushleff eliminated one of the fullbacks and Gushleff burst by the other to score with a right-footed shot.

Gushleff made the score 2-0 with a shot to the right side of the net on a penalty kick. Lebanon kept the game close with a goal in the last minute of the first quarter. Madison goalie Jerry Jackson picked the ball up from the left corner of the net.

As a result, Lebanon received an indirect free kick six yards outside the Madison goal. Ken Sharp's left-footed shot hit the underside of the crossbar and deflected into the goal.

With their lead cut in half, Gushleff and Madison went back on offense. Gushleff took a throw deep in Lebanon's territory. He dribbled around two Greyhound defenders, broke for the goal and let go a low shot that deflected off the goalie and into the net.

With less than two minutes in the half, Gushleff got his fourth goal of the game to put Madison up 4-1. He took a loose ball and moved to his left, shooting on the right side of the net.

Gushleff's fifth goal of the game played second fiddle only to his last goal. Again, a Madison pass got Gushleff the ball with only two people to beat. He blew by the first, dodged the other and moved in on the goalie. Lebanon keeper Wesley Brooks cut down Gushleff's angle on the net but the low shot snuck into the right side of the net.

On Madison's next goal, Gushleff delivered an assist. He moved around two defenders and while falling down, crossed the ball to Mainridge, who delivered a header into the net.

A shot from five yards outside the Lebanon net marked Gushleff's sixth goal and gave Madison a 7-1 lead.

Gushleff capped off the brilliant day by beating five Lebanon defenders to score.

Lebanon scored an unusual goal when Sharp surprised Jackson with a header from 25 feet out.

then scored the third penalty kick to put Vianny in the tournament final.

"I told Sanchez to just to make good contact on the ball," Villa said. "When the ball is wet and muddy and you can't plant your feet before you shoot, you want to control your kick."

Vianny opened the scoring in the game with a 2-0 left in the first half. After the Griffins had four short-range shots that Falcon sophomore goalie Jeff Stube turned away, Mike Lampe tried the long-distance approach and scored.

Lampe took a pass 10 feet from outside the penalty area and let go a low shot that skipped off the wet grass and scored past the diving Stube. The game remained 1-0 until 10:07 was left. Aquinas-Mercy forced a corner kick. Sorber tried his kick along the wet grass. Steve Baker's deflection hit just under the crossbar and bounced in to tie the game.

The game goes into the record books as a tie, though Vianny advances to the tournament final with its shoot-out win.

Midgets terrorize Trojans, 7-6

By Gary King
Correspondent

FREEBURG — Pick the cliché that best describes the Madison Trojans' 7-6 loss to the Freeburg Midgets on Friday night:

- A) When it rains it pours.
- B) Close, but no cigar.
- C) Close only counts in horseshoes and nuclear war.
- D) Some things are just not meant to be.

If you chose all of the above, congratulations. You're entitled to join the Trojans and their coach, Don Smith, in their worst nightmare.

Actually, the Trojan Terror started out more like a dream on a rainy fall evening.

The big-play oriented Trojans did what they do best on the first play of the second quarter. They struck quicker than a Trojan missile. Second down, ball on the Madison 34 yard line and — Bang. Quarterback Quincy Williams hooks up with far Smith for a 66-yard touchdown. Smith's two-point conversion would fail, giving Madison a 6-0 lead. The missed conversion would later earn a starring role in the "Night of the Trojans"

Terror."

Freeburg would enjoy only one play from scrimmage on their ensuing possession before Trojan linebacker Stephen Boyd would intercept a Luke Schutzenhofer pass across the middle, putting the Madison offense back in business near midfield.

And then the Trojan Terror got into full swing. After the Boyd-generated drive stalled, Trojan punter Robbie Poston's kick would sail into the stonewall anatomy of Freeburg's Jeff Towles. Blocked punt. Freeburg's ball on the Trojan 16 yard line.

Three plays later Midget quarterback Luke Schutzenhofer would plunge three yards into the endzone, tying the score at 6-6.

The Midgets converted their extra-point attempt, giving them the margin of victory. The Freeburg extra point would earn a co-starring role in the Trojan Terror.

Building the case that it was a win not meant to be for the Trojans: "That's the first extra point we've made in the last six tries," Dalke said in the Midget locker room after the game. "Our kicking game is hurt all year. It's just a gut good."

Further proof: Quarterback Quincy Williams led Madison's Freeburg's 25-yard line with runs of 25 and 20 yards, only to watch the drive stall in a waning moments of the first half.

Madison did their best to shake the nightmare on the first drive of the second half when three of Williams' passes to Boyd, Smith and Derrico Treadway gave Madison a 16-6 down at the Midget in the There's more. Ian Smith would sneak behind the Madison secondary and apparently pass onto Williams' pass near the endzone. For a split-second Madison appeared to have shook the nightmare.

But Smith dropped the pass. "It would've been a crucial catch, but that's the kind of plays they make," Dalke said. But with Murphy's last working 90-to-nothing punt, Madison, it would turn into a play they didn't make.

Madison's last gasp of hope saw them — move to the

Griffins win shoot-out against Falcons

By Carl Jacobs
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Vianny and Thomas Aquinas-Mercy stood toe-to-toe in a shoot out Friday during the Granite City Tournament of Champions semifinal.

In a downpour, Vianny scored three penalty kicks to Aquinas-Mercy's two in the shoot-out.

The contest fell into a penalty shootout when the teams battled to a 1-1 tie after regulation time and two, 10-minute overtimes.

After regulation and overtime play, each team took turns shooting five shots to decide the winner.

The Griffins were in trouble when their first shot went wide. Their next kick scored, providing a little relief. The final shot increased when their next kick sent the ball sailing over the goal.

Down 2-1, with two shots remaining for each team, Griffin goalie Ray Stika made two diving stops while Vianny scored to tie the game. On the final shot, a hard, low drive by Ben Sanchez into the lower corner of the net, Vianny won.

The Griffins mobbed Sanchez on the muddy field.

"Stika made two unbelievable saves," said Vianny head coach Mike Villa. "Before the penalty kicks I told him he played a great game and he stops some shots fine, if not there is nothing he can do about."

Stika's saves would've been great on a dry field but on the muddy, slippery goal, they were as Villa said, "unbelievable."

It thought we would be here a long time," Villa said. "Considering the field conditions, the goalies didn't have any reasonable chance to stop the penalty kicks."

In the shoot-out, Tom Pardo of Aquinas-Mercy shot first and scored. Tom Schaeffer's first shot for Vianny missed wide.

The Falcons' Tim Orman gave Aquinas-Mercy a 2-0 lead and Griffin Jeff Mika kept Vianny's hopes alive when he scored.

Both teams missed with their next shot. Sanchez then robbed Mike Sorber.

Sanchez gave Vianny a chance to win when he dove to the right to stop Steve Baker. Sanchez

Lady Luck has no bias to outdoor columnists

By Larry Bulus
Staff affiliate

A mistaken notion long held by the outdoor-minded public is that outdoor writers are a privileged lot, getting to hunt on game-rich acreage and fish on heavily stocked lakes. This misconception is completely at odds with the view that outdoor scribes are immune to the vagaries of that fickle old gal, Lady Luck, as well as the repercussions of Murphy's Law.

Alas, I am witness to the fact that such is not the case. Nationally known outdoor writers may enjoy cushy fishing and hunting, but I hunt and fish in the same sort of places as Joe Public. Once in a great while some kind soul will invite me to his snazzy duck club or fishing spot where the living is easy and about the worst thing that can happen is to miss your guide show up to invites late with your hot lunch. But for the most part, I knock on farm doors or hunt and fish public lands and am subject to the same misadventures as everyone else. I wouldn't care to have it any other way. Take a late afternoon trip. I made just a few days ago. On a friend's farm I hiked a half-mile to his lake. On the way I stepped into a hole that wasn't there the last time I passed that way, hitting the ground. I bruised my leg some, but had the good sense to hold my rod high over my head so it wouldn't be broken during my unscheduled nose dive.

At the lake I strapped on my chest waders. Moments after wading in I discovered that the fall had punctured more than my ego; I felt a cold spot on my right thigh. I went ahead and fished. I thrashed the west side of the lake to a foaming lather with half a dozen "killer" lures and caught one scrawny bass not much bigger than the spinner-bait.

There was about a third of a mile to Walter's other lake, a pond of less than 2 acres. I took the long way around because it is a well-defined trail of brush and weeds. This pond was my ace in the hole. I rarely fail to catch a few nice fish there. More than an hour of casting produced four bass, which wouldn't have combined to weigh much more than a pound.

I was so preoccupied with trying to catch a decent fish that I forgot about the muskrat hole by the big willow. This time my left leg went down and I fell forward into 8 inches of goey black muck. When I regained my footing my shirt was spattered with a new camouflage pattern and I smelled like a swamp in August.

I finally decided I'd had enough "fun" for one evening so headed back, intent on making a few more casts before dark at the first lake. To save time I took a short cut. Now, we all know that taking a so-called short cut is never a wise thing to do, but who always uses common sense? The short cut, it turned out, took me through weeds and briars so thick that had I died on the spot even the buzzards wouldn't have found me.

Finally, wheezing like an asthma steam engine, I arrived back at the first lake.

I've waded this stretch a hundred times in the past several years and where that hole I stepped into came from, I'll never know. Worse, yet, I'd forgotten to cinch up my wader tops and in five seconds I was soaked from belly to toes.

Undaunted, I went on fishing, hoping to catch one fish longer than the lure and thereby salvage a badly bruised ego. After all, didn't I deserve at least one fish, what with having taken two ground-thumping falls, gotten my waders stuck full of needle-like briars and now being soaked over two-thirds of my rapidly wrinkling body?

Lady Luck didn't smile but she did give me a quick wink when a dandy 3 1/2-pound bass struck the Zara and tail-walked all the way in before I was able to land it.

Freeburg 25 on a 35-yard pass from Williams to Smith with 1:53 left in the game. But the Trojans were slapped awake from the dream of victory when a weak Williams pass was intercepted by Freeburg defensive tackle Jeff Haas.

As the clock ran out on Madison's second loss in seven games, a heavy rain began to fall. It seemed meant for Madison and coach Don Smith.

"We just weren't ready," said a dejected Smith. "We didn't have any enthusiasm. We didn't have any leadership. We were completely flat. Maybe we took them for granted ... I don't know."

Smith blamed the loss more on failure than fate.

"We should've won, but we gave it up," the Trojan coach said. "Not making the two-point play hurt us, dropping the pass in the endzone hurt us, the blocked punt hurt us and last interception just killed us. The ball shouldn't have been thrown."

"We get close to having a real good year, but then we just can't pull it off. I don't know if it's because the guys have never been there before but we just get choked up. Now we've got to try to win one of our last two games and the 6-3 will get us into the playoffs."

The only thing equal to Smith's dejection was Dalke's disbelief. "If someone would've told me that we were going to win this game 7-6, I would've told them they were crazy," said the Midget coach.

Statistically, Madison out-gained the Midgets, 237 yards to 130. The Williams-to-Smith connection would gain 141 yards on four receptions.

"We contained their outside running game and made them down their short passing game," Dalke said. "They're a big-play team. But our defense really did a good job of keeping them in check."

Freeburg's defensive effort, however, took a back-seat to Madison's. Especially in the second half, when the Trojan defense allowed the Midgets only three first downs.

"We were lucky to get a handoff in the second half," Dalke said. "They made some adjustments, and they really shut us down. They've got a good food, very quick defense."

Dalke and Smith agreed on one point: the Trojan playing field didn't help the Midgets. "I don't think it made much of a difference, but I don't think it exactly helped us either," Smith said.

"Let's put it this way," Dalke said philosophically. "The rain didn't hurt us. Frankly, rain helps the weaker team. And it helped us some tonight."
